How the Score Is Calculated

Each inbound lead is scored out of 10 across four signals the agent extracts from the message text:

- Clarity of need (0–2) — is the ask specific, or vague?
- Budget signal (0–3) — is a number mentioned, and is it realistic for the ask?
- Urgency / timeline (0–2) — is there a deadline or stated urgency?
- Decision authority (0–2) — does the sender sound like the person who can say yes?

- Service fit (0–1) — does the request match services actually offered?

Leads scoring 7+ get a same-day, fully personalized reply proposing a specific next step. Leads scoring 3–6 get a lower-pressure nurture reply. Anything below that — including clear vendor pitches — gets archived with no reply, so the business owner's inbox only surfaces what actually needs their attention.

Why This Matters

A business owner checking their inbox manually treats every message the same — a hot $15k opportunity sits next to a spam pitch until someone reads both. This agent applies consistent scoring in seconds, drafts a response that already matches the lead's context, and only asks a human to review before anything goes out — full follow-up drafts are in `follow-up-drafts.md`.
